STUTZ

Easy to Manage

Always noted for its superior ability on track, road and thoroughfare, the Stutz now attains new heights of comfort both for those who drive and those who ride.

It negotiates the rutted stretches so easily that one is hardly cognizant of their presence. It steers, shifts and responds so readily to every touch of pedal and lever that driving is delightfully effortless and serene.

CENTRAL AMERICA IS TO CONFER ON ARMS

Harding Invites Five Republics to Discuss Limitation in Washington.

SOLIDARITY IS SOUGHT

Southern States Willing to Extend Treaty of Amity Signed in 1907.

MEETING OPENS DEC. 4

Tribunal Projected to Settle Disputes That Threaten to Bring on War.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

New York Herald Bureau, Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.

A conference for the limitation of armament and for the extension of the work of the Washington arms conference to the five States of Central America has been called by the United States Government and will open here on December 4.

Announcement was made to-day by Secretary Hughes that the call went out last Saturday when the United States legations in those countries communicated the invitation to the Presidents of Guatemala, Salvador, Nicaragua, Honduras and Costa Rica.

The Administration, being assured of the willingness of all five republics to adopt measures that will lead to stable political conditions in Central America, regards the conference as a landmark in the development of this Government's policy to promote the solidarity of the Western Hemisphere.

At the same time the action affords assurance that this Government will continue in every way to develop and apply the basic principles of arms limitation adopted in the Washington conference.

Agenda of the Conference.

The agenda of the conference, as set forth in the invitations, follow:

First, the signing of a treaty binding the five states to make effective and to extend the treaty signed in Washington on December 20, 1907, for the promotion of friendly relations and cooperation among the five nations.

Second, adoption of measures in line with the limitation of armament worked out at the Washington conference to limit the military burdens of the five states and to set an example to the rest of the world and in particular to the nations of this hemisphere.

Third, formulation of plans for the setting up of a tribunal of inquiry to adjust points or controversies which may arise in regard to the purpose of the treaties and which cannot be settled through diplomatic channels.

Fourth, the consideration of any other questions which the countries participating in the conference may desire to bring up.

Secretary Hughes's invitation for the conference is the outgrowth of the meeting of the Presidents of Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador held on board the U. S. S. Tacoma in Fonseca Bay at the request of the President of Nicaragua for the discussion of measures for more peaceful relations between the countries and for discouraging revolutionary activities.

Agreement Signed on Warship.

At the conference on the Tacoma an agreement was signed, acknowledging the treaty of 1907 as being in force. It was also stipulated that the Governments of Guatemala and Costa Rica would be asked to adhere to the agreement and that a preliminary conference would be called in December to consider additional measures for the well being of Central America.

On being invited to sign the Tacoma agreement the Governments of Guatemala and Costa Rica declared this was not necessary, as they considered themselves bound by the treaty of 1907. The way was thus cleared for the issuance of the conference call, this Government having assurance that the States concerned would accept it.

This Government feels that the conference will have a fruitful effect in stabilizing conditions in Central America, where revolutionary activities and constant bickerings have kept the region in a state of political and military turmoil. It is also the belief here that it will do much to increase American prestige and the control of armament, the keystone of foreign policy of the Harding Administration.

GIRL FAINTS AT PHONE AND POLICE ARE CALLED

Lightning Shock Leads Admirer to Call for Help.

Miss Vera Fay of 182 Bayview avenue, Jersey City, employed by Garacanda Bros., importers, at 280 Broadway, had to work late last night. Just after dinner Harry J. Lifer of 189 Neptune avenue, Jersey City, telephoned to her. They talked for a few minutes, and then Lifer heard a sizzling sound, followed an instant later by a cry from Miss Fay.

Then the telephone was disconnected. Lifer jiggled the receiver, got the wire chiefs and information clerks and everybody else he could, but the connection could not be restored. Thinking something serious had happened to the girl Lifer telephoned to New York Police Headquarters. He begged the police to send the entire force to see what had caused Miss Fay to shout "Oh, my God!" and then quit talking to him. He expressed the opinion that murder probably had been committed.

Headquarters did not send the entire force, but from the Oak street station hurried Detectives Kemp, Strojan, Coffey and Roy and Patrolman Fred Norman. They reached the building a few minutes before the arrival of Lifer, who found them inside the Garacanda offices. Patrolman Norman stood in the hallway. As soon as he saw the policeman Lifer cried:

"What has happened?"

Norman didn't know, so Lifer went inside. He found Miss Fay explaining to the detectives that a vivid flash of lightning had struck in the neighborhood while she was talking to Lifer; that it had shocked her arm and that she had fainted. She said she did not know that she had cried "Oh, my God!" but said she didn't doubt it. She recovered from the swoon in a few moments and then went back to work.

INDICTS 48 MORE MEN FOR HERRIN MURDERS

Judge Hartwell Believes Indictments Are Illegal.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

MARION, Ill., Oct. 23.—Forty-eight more were indicted to-day for the Herrin massacre, making a total of 434 indictments, 215 being for murder.

Judge D. T. Hartwell says that the indictments returned to-day are illegal because of the fact that the jury went out of existence with the July term of court. State's Attorney Delos Duty declares that he will test the legality of the indictments by carrying the case to the Supreme Court.

GIRL OF 23 HEADS BERGIN TRIAL JURY

Cline, Miss Thornton and Charles and Lawrence Scullion, brothers of Mrs. Cline.

Cline turned to Eurilo and said: "This guy was my best friend, but he has betrayed me and ruined my wife."

The two men, Eurilo said, then went upstairs.

At this point one of the women jurors, Eugenia Muller, asked whether Bergin had been backed up the stairs by Cline or whether he went up voluntarily.

The witness replied that it appeared to him that Bergin went up "in the ordinary way."

After the two men passed upstairs, Eurilo said, there came the sound of a scuffle, then a shot. A minute or so afterwards Bergin came down holding his right hand over his chest, near his left shoulder. Without a word he passed through the room and out into the street.

Cline descended the stairs immediately behind Bergin, it was testified, and said to Eurilo:

"I'll have no time to talk to you tonight. I'll see you some other time."

Eurilo said he went outside the house and found Miss Thornton already there. She asked him to drive her to the drug store, as she wanted to telephone. He said he took her to the drug store, which is near the Edgewater ferry landing. On the way they saw Bergin lying on the sidewalk, about 500 feet from the Cline house.

Two statements made by Miss Thornton after the killing, one to Assistant Prosecutor McCarthy and the other to County Detective Nathan Allyn, were read to the court.

In the statement to McCarthy Miss Thornton admitted intermittent relations with Bergin between October, 1920, and July, 1922. She described in detail the slaying of Bergin in the Cline home. Just before the shooting, Miss Thornton testified, Mrs. Cline said to Bergin:

"Jack, I had to tell my husband for my children's sake."

"Then Jack stood up," Miss Thornton continued, "and said:

"Well, I did it, I know, and what are you going to do about it?"

"Then Mr. Cline said: 'Well, Jack, we will go upstairs and fight it out like two men. You will take a gun and I will take a gun.'"

"Then Jack said, 'All women are alike. They are all... I do not remember the word, but it was not a nice word, meaning traitors, and then he (Bergin) said, 'She is a common bun, meaning Mrs. Cline.'"

"Then Jack went over toward the door and said to George Cline, 'Come on outside, George, I have something to tell you.'"

"Then Mr. Cline said, 'No; if you have anything to say tell it to me right in this room.'"

"Jack pleaded with him, saying, 'For my mother's sake, don't, and Mamie (Mrs. Cline) said to him, 'For the children's sake, don't.'"

In the statement to Detective Allyn, Miss Thornton said the reason she grabbed Mrs. Cline and prevented her from interfering with the killing was that she thought Mrs. Cline might be shot.

William Bergin, father of the actor, testified his son left home on the day of the killing, saying he was going to Cline's to get a job.

The trial will be continued to-day.

RESERVE BANK HAS UNIONS RESTRAINED

Cleveland Institution Takes Action to Have Its Building Completed.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23.—The granting of a temporary order in Federal Court here to-day restraining twenty-five leaders and members of international and local labor unions in the building trades from "interfering or hampering" the completion of the new Federal Reserve Bank by calling their men out on strike over the metal trim jurisdictional dispute with the carpenters is the first step in a legal battle directed at the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, international union officials asserted here to-night.

Union leaders declared the move is directed at the building trades department because of its efforts to enforce the decision of the National Board of Jurisdictional Awards that metal trim should go to sheet metal workers and not to carpenters.

"This belief is based on a statement in the bill of complaint of the Federal Reserve Bank that the board of president's of the federation's building trades department is thought to be responsible for the strike on its building," an international president declared, who asked that his name be withheld until he learned what provisions the temporary restraining order included.

"The complaint in general sets forth charges of conspiracy which later may take the form of a blanket action against this department of the federation and possibly the federation itself."

Union leaders said to-night that if the temporary injunction is granted after the hearing Saturday the plan of the international union heads to fight out the metal trim issue on the bank building will be called off or transferred to some other building now under construction in Cleveland.

WALSH SAYS PARTY LINES ARE DROPPED

Bay State Senator Finds West Full of Unrest.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

New York Herald Bureau, Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.

Party lines throughout the Middle and far Western States are being cast aside, according to Senator Walsh (Mass.), chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Committee, who has been campaigning in the West for three weeks and returned to Washington to-day convinced that the Democrats will make substantial gains in both Houses.

"The farmers everywhere," he said, "are in financial distress, labor is restless, business men skeptical and fearful—in a word, the country is full of unrest. They have given up hope either of sympathetic consideration or solution of their problems from Washington."

The people are in a protesting mood and party lines mean little to them. The Democratic party will make large gains because it is the best means through which the disappointed and disheartened millions can register their disapproval."

He predicted that although the terms of eight Democratic Senators will expire in Western States which went Republican in 1920, "the number of Democratic Senators from the West will be more rather than less than eight."

THEOLOGICALS HELP IN YALE CENTENARY

Divinity School Celebrates Hundredth Anniversary—Lasts Three Days.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 23.—Theologians from the most prominent colleges of the country are gathered here to-night to participate in the ceremonies commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the Yale Divinity School, second oldest professional school in the university, which began a three days' celebration here to-day.

The centennial is being observed in conjunction with the fourteenth annual convocation of alumni of the divinity school and ministers of Connecticut. The delegates and guests assembled to-day in Memorial Hall at 2:30 P. M. and joined in a procession to Battell Chapel, where the celebration was begun formally.

The devotional service was conducted by Prof. Tweedy, Dr. Angell, the president, and Prof. Wright of Yale addressed the assemblage, dwelling particularly on the long and eventful history of the divinity school, calling its services beyond value, and paying tribute to Dean Charles R. Brown, under whose direction the school has reached its present high standard.

Dinner was served at 7:30 this evening in the president's room in Memorial Hall, after which prominent theologians spoke of the great advance made by American schools of theology in recent years, particularly the part Divinity School has played. The speakers were the Rev. Willard Leavoy Sperry, D. D., dean of the Theological School in Harvard University; the Rev. Arthur Cushman McGiffert, P. H. D., D. D., LL. D., president of Union Theological Seminary; the Rev. Joseph Ross Stevenson, D. D., LL. D., dean of the Princeton Theological Seminary; the Rev. James Albert Beebe, D. D., dean of the Boston University School of Theology; the Rev. George Edwin Herr, D. D., president of Newton Theological Seminary, and the Rev. Hughell Edgar Woodall Fosbrooke, D. D., dean of the General Theological Seminary.

To-morrow will occur the unveiling of a tablet of the Rev. Timothy Dwight, in Marquand Chapel, and the alumni meeting and alumni luncheon later in the day.

BUSINESS IS IMPROVING, WASHINGTON REPORTS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Improved business conditions and increased employment, with almost no idle men seeking work, obtain in practically all sections of the United States, according to an official report to-day by the Department of Labor.

The agents of the service indicate an almost universal shortage of common labor and a general demand for skilled workmen in a wide variety of trades and occupations.

In Massachusetts, Connecticut and other New England States common labor shortage was said to be pronounced and building trade workers fully employed. In Illinois the department found the industrial situation "better than it has been in the last two years," and in Michigan and Ohio similar improvement was noted.

In New York State clerical help was said to show the only oversupply of workers.

Is Your Wife An Investment Expert?

If you tried to manage your household economy—dealing with butcher, baker, iceman and milkman—it would cost you a pretty penny more than it does your wife. You would be a shining mark for those who sell and serve, because you have no intimate knowledge of current market values in that particular field.

When you are gone your wife, unless she is one of those rare women with a financial instinct backed by business experience, will be a shining mark for promoters, swindlers and (most dangerous of all) friends with unsound investment ideas. You have not now the time nor the opportunity to train her in the rudiments of investing. Even if you undertook to do so, she would still lack those intimate business contacts and the practical experience which enable you to manage your affairs wisely.

A TRUST administered by this bank will insure your family against the experience of those you leave behind. The funds you set aside in trust will be invested by men who have made a life-long study of securities and the needs of various types of investors. The securities in which your trust funds will be invested will be approved by a committee of three directors of this bank—men whose wide contacts with business affairs make their services invaluable.

There is a Trust to fit every need. It can be made to operate during your life or after your death, or both. It may be revocable or irrevocable. It will enable you to provide for the distribution of the income and eventually the principal of your estate in accordance with your best judgment.

We will welcome the opportunity to show you, through a personal conference, how flexible and comprehensive a Trust may be.

Our booklet, Trusts and Trustees will be sent on request
